Inventory on the Rise in Lincoln County

Ruidoso/Lincoln County Association of REALTORS® Reports on Latest Housing Market Activity

The inventory of homes for sale in Lincoln County in June climbed to 557, a 4.8 percent increase over May, although still down 12.9 percent from June 2018. This is the highest inventory of homes listed for sale since last fall according to the Multiple Listing Service Report from the Ruidoso/Lincoln County Association of REALTORS® (RLCAR) which reports on all areas contained within the MLS.

The increase in inventory is thanks to the 103 homes and condos that were added to the market in June. June’s new listings were 8 percent less than the same month a year ago, and up 8.7 percent from May.

Lincoln County continues to see a rise in year over year average sale prices and median sale price. The average sale price rising nearly five percent to $269,209 and the median growing thirty-eight percent to $214,250. The days a home spent on the market fell twenty-eight days from this same month last year with June reporting 179 days on the market.

“Because we have so many buyers looking for affordable homes, those homes in the lower price ranges are selling more quickly,” said Sean Simpson, RLCAR’s 2019 President. “In fact, five years ago, homes under $350,000 took nearly twice as long to sell than today!”

Of the homes sold last month, the majority was priced between $50,000 and $199,999 (45.7 percent). Another 21.7 percent were priced between $200,000 and $299,999; 17.4 percent were priced between $300,000 and $399,999 and the remaining 15.2 percent of the homes sold were priced over $400,000.
